

Title X Funding

Congress must fund the Title X program every year to keep family planning and sexual health services accessible. Although the program has historically received bipartisan support, it has never been fully funded — a 2016 study estimated that would take at least $737 million annually.

