

Title X-funded health centers helped women avoid one million unintended pregnancies in 2013, which prevented 501,000 unplanned births and 345,000 abortions.

Despite these positive health impacts, federal funding for Title X has shrunk, and now fewer low-income and uninsured people across the country, and in Washington, are able to access family planning and sexual health services funded by Title X.

WHY TITLE X MATTERS

One rural agency has closed due to financial hardship. We are in the process of trying to create a partnership between an existing FP contractor and the local community health center to resume services in that area. Another health department has had to close two family planning clinic sites. A Planned Parenthood is trying to serve those clients. All agencies have had to reduce hours and layoff staff. Almost all are running with minimal staff.

I rely on my provider to provide quality care when I need it.

My provider is trustworthy and supportive. It's where I prefer to go to get the high-quality health care I count on.

Even with the Affordable Care Act, 30 million are left out.
