Historical Funding of Title X
Shows Major Downturn over the Last Seven Years

Title X saw an increase in funding under Republican presidents. With a Democratic president and Republican congress, the program experienced funding increases. Title X funding rose between 2004 and 2007, even with a Republican president and congress.

Under President Bush, Title X funding increased (except 2006).

Between 1985 and 2010, cuts to Title X totaled $13.9 million. However, over just the last seven years, Title X funding has been slashed by $31 million. Not since 1981–1983 has the program experienced cuts like this.

* Reflects funding level after across the board rescission
** Obama signed into law, but increase originally designated by Congress under Bush
*** Reflects sequestration